Arnold & Porter Law & Policy Series

Arnold & Porter LLP is pleased to announce a new event series hosted by our San Francisco office. The series will focus on timely legal issues and explore the intersection of law and policy. Drawing on the capabilities of both our San Francisco office and our international presence, the series will also feature outside speakers, bringing added insight and fresh perspectives to the discussion.

What's Coming in 2009: Law Enforcement Priorities in the Obama Administration

Overview:

James W. Cooper and Robert S. Litt, partners in the white collar criminal defense practice group who each worked in the past with Eric H. Holder Jr., President Obama's nominee for Attorney General, will share their perspectives on policies and priorities in the new US Department of Justice (DOJ).

About the Speakers:

James Cooper focuses his practice on representing business organizations and individuals in matters relating to government enforcement and investigation, involving financial and securities fraud, the Bank Secrecy Act and anti-money laundering laws, and the Foreign Corrupt Practices Act. Prior to joining Arnold & Porter LLP, Mr. Cooper served in the Public Integrity Section of the DOJ and as Assistant US Attorney for the District of Columbia.

Robert Litt is a civil and criminal litigator and the head of Arnold & Porter's white collar criminal defense practice group. Mr. Litt represents corporate and individual clients in a wide range of grand jury investigations, enforcement proceedings, congressional investigations, white collar criminal trials, and internal investigations. Prior to joining Arnold & Porter in 1999, Mr. Litt served for five years in the DOJ as Principal Associate Deputy Attorney General and as Deputy Assistant Attorney General in the Criminal Division.
